Relationships are the source of the greatest pleasures and rewards in life, as well as some of its biggest disappointments. I believe that the Power is between us! We can deal with relationships in a creative and innovative way. The result: a better life for ourselves and those around us."

Relationship Capital Prentice Hall 2002

Australian psychiatrist, MBA, Executive Coach and Trainer, Dr Carlos A. Raimundo is the creator of the Play of Life®; a method and technology that revolutionised individual and team behavioural transformation more than 20 years ago.

He is as much at home coaching the General Secretary of the OEA in strategic management as he is with counselling indigenous people on the South Pacific Island of Kiribati.

The captivating simplicity of his methodology facilitates change in people's lives in an alive, sharp and useful manner by bypassing the neo-cortex and directly connecting with the limbic system; that part of the brain that deals with emotions, memory and sustainable behavioural change.

Dr. Raimundo's extensive experience in the fields of business, philosophy, medicine, psychiatry and group training enables him to integrate the best of each. He guides individuals, executives and organisations through easy, practical steps towards new goals and directions.

Dr. Raimundo has a unique ability to identify the objectives of an organisation; be it corporate, welfare or religious, to clarify the personal values of those working toward these objectives, and then, expanding upon them, establish organisational communication that achieves both work goals and a life balance.

Dr. Raimundo is often brought in during growth change, where his skills of improving clarification and communication are in high demand.

Dr Raimundo is a sought after motivational speaker and international keynote presenter.

"People spend so many hours at work, it should be a place where the best of the person can be stimulated to emerge and develop." Australian Talent Conference , 2008, Sydney
